PREFACE.

AS time rolls on changes take place that we never dreamed of. To-day family history and tradition are the prevailing topics. Realizing the family of Lents to be a large and patriotic one, the author and publisher of this work attempted to collect information on the Lent family. After about seven years or more of hard work, entailing a large expense collecting the necessary information—both biographical and genealogical—to warrant the publication of a work of this kind, it is now submitted to the reader for his criticism. The family is one of the most widely extended in the United States. This fact made the preparation of the work very difficult. This being the first Lent family history ever gotten up, made it a still greater undertaking, but “where there’s a will there’s a way.” So after working diligently and energetically, tired often, discouraged at times, we kept at it. Finally the information came in rapidly, and this gave us new vigor, and at last we came off victor.

Several persons had undertaken to publish a book of the Lent Family, but after a time they gave it up. It was too hard an undertaking—the work covering the very long period of two hundred and sixty-five years.

As we perused the time-worn leaves from the old records, an impression was left upon our minds that can never be forgotten. To know the hand that rocked the cradle of our ancestors, handled the pen that wrote the signature some two hundred years ago! Some of the names in Dutch had to be interpreted, while others were clear and plain in English. If our forefathers could but arise from their long slumbering places of abode, and know the great multitude that have lived since their time, they would be amazed.

The name was originally “Ryck Abrahamson,” who took the name of “van Lent.” The van signifying of or from the land of Lent in Holland.

This name van Lent was retained by some of the family until the last century, when it was finally dropped, and they used the plain name "Lent." We find also one or two who spell their name with the final "e"—Lente. The letter was placed there for reasons not known. The last and only one who spells his name "Lente" is the Rev. James Rapelye Lente, a retired Protestant Dutch Reformed minister residing at Washingtonville, N. Y.

There may be errors in the book, but we trust not many, as we have been very careful to have it as accurate as possible. If errors are found we wish you would send them to the publisher, so that he can make a record of them, in case he should issue another edition.

We trust the book will get into the hands of all the family of Lents, especially here represented, as we think it will be invaluable to them in the way of making known their family lines, &c.

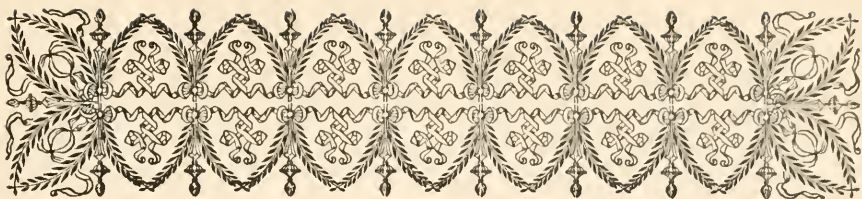

Outside of the Lent family we wish to thank Mr. E. M. Rутtenber, the historian; Mr. Samuel Ritchie, Mr. Frank S. Hull, Mr. Hiram Lozier and Darwin W. Esmond, Esq., of Newburgh, N. Y., and Rev. Mr. Force, of Montrose, N. Y., and Franklin Couch, Esq., of Peekskill, N. Y., for valuable assistance given us.

To you, one and all of the family, we are indebted for the valuable assistance rendered in the compilation of this work, and my kindest thanks are extended.

NELSON BURTON LENT.

THE LENT FAMILY.

CAPTAIN JACOB SIMONS DE RYCK, a wealthy corn merchant of Amsterdam, Holland, was the ^{son} of Melchoir de Ryck. His father, Jacob de Ryck, was the father of Abraham de Ryck, who emigrated to the United States in the year 1638. He received in that year an allotment of land from Governor Kieft, for which he afterwards took out a patent, dated August 8, 1640. He died in 1689, leaving his farm by will to his son Abraham. He married Gertie, daughter of Hendrick Hermansen. Children :

1. Ryck Abrahamson, born in 1637.
2. Jacob, born in 1640. Died in infancy.
3. Jacob, born in 1643, assisted his brothers in the purchase of "Ryck's Patent," now part of Cortlandtown, Westchester County, N. Y.
4. Hendrick, born in 1646. Died in infancy.
5. Mary, born in 1649, m. Sybout H. Krankheyt, of the Manor of Courtlandt.
6. John, born in 1651. Married Margaret, dau. Jacobus Krankheyt.
7. Aletta, born in 1653, m. Capt. John Harmansen, of the Manor of Courtlandt.
8. Abraham, born in 1655. Died about 1690.
9. Hendrick, born 1662, m. Catharina ———.

Because of some connection with an old noble family of Brunswick, bearing the name of "Lent," or perhaps, some portion of their family had resided in a place called "Lent" in Holland, it is said, the same was adopted (quite customary in those days), is a probable reason, as in old records it is found written "Hendrick van Lent," &c. The Dutch "van" signifying "of" or "from."

Riker, in his "Annals of Newtown," says: "This family is of common origin, (descendants from one family), with the preceding one being descended from Ryck and Hendrick, the eldest and youngest sons of Abraham Rycken, who, for some reason not clearly ascertained, removed their own cognomen, and assumed that of "Lent." And there is also reason for the belief, that it was their maternal grandfather who came from Lent, and that he is the person intended in a letter to Governor Stuyvesant in 1654, from his superiors in Holland, where allusion is made to one "Hendrick Hermansen van Lent," a soldier sent to Curacoa, but who was not to be found there.

A tradition exists, that their ancestors located at a very early period, at what was called the "Poor Bowery," (Bouwerij, Dutch farm) and purchased from the natives a large tract of land at that place. That having previously been an armourer in the Dutch service, he was accustomed to forge tomahawks for the Indians around about him, but that on a certain occasion, the savages, under a sudden excitement, assaulted him and one of them gave him a fatal blow, and terminated his life with one of the very instruments of death that he had made for him; that after this his widow re-married and the property was disposed of to the Dutch Church.

Hendrick Hermansen, the original proprietor of the farm mentioned, had a daughter and she married Abraham Rycken.

Again it is said, the Rikers or Ryck's-Lents and Krankheys were of common origin in Germany, and located at a very remote period in Lower Saxony, where they enjoyed a state of allodial independence, at that day regarded as constituting nobility. They there possessed the estate or Manor of Rycken, from which they took their name then written "van Rycken," indicating its terminal derivation. "Hans van Rycken, the Lord of the Manor and a valiant Knight, with his cousin, Melchoir van Rycken, who lived in Holland, took part in the first crusade to the Holy Land in 1096, heading eight hundred crusaders in the army of 'Walter the Penniless.'" Melchoir lived to return, but Hans perished in that ill-fated expedition. In time the descendants of Melchoir van Rycken extended themselves from Holland to the region of the Rhine and into Switzerland.

A tradition, which has been handed down from generation to generation by the Lents, as true, is as follows: "The ship left Amsterdam, Holland, May, 1640, and arrived at New Amsterdam (New York), August, 1640. Peekskill, when first known to the Dutch, was inhabited by a tribe or clan of Delaware or Lenape Indians, and they called the place "Sachoes." The Dutch first called the place "Peak's-kill," from one of their early navigators, Jan Peak, who with his vessel was on his way to join the upper settlement, Fort Orange (Albany), and mistaking the channel ran his vessel on a sand-bar at a very high tide. That when the tide fell away the ship was almost on dry land, and it was impossible to get the vessel off without discharging the cargo. This they feared to do on account of the Indians who came around the vessel in their canoes in large numbers, but appeared to be very peaceable and not disposed to do any harm. They brought with them many things to eat, and by signs offered them to those on board the vessel, and very soon a trade was begun by both parties. Soon by signs which appeared friendly, two from the vessel's company volunteered to go on shore, the Indians coming around them in great numbers. One or two who had been out to the vessel, presented them to their chief, who with great dignity received them very kindly. When the boat returned to the vessel the Indians almost loaded the boat with such as they themselves had to eat. Thus a friendship was established between the Dutch and the Indians, which looked to all coming time, and by the assistance of the Indians the Dutch moved their goods on shore and began the settlement of the place.

The place was Roe-ya-hook, and the Indian village was on and near the land now occupied as a military parade ground, known as the "State Camp." It was there the white man first placed his feet and on that ground the settlement began and in perfect peace with the Indians. By the help of the Indians they began to build themselves houses, and were always careful to deal justly, truthfully and honestly with the Indians, giving them an equivalent for their services rendered.

The Dutch soon learned the Indian language and the settlement increased. The Indians proposed to sell the Dutch a tract of land especially for the use of the settlement, and July 10, 1641, a council was held and the chiefs of other clan united and an agreement was made and the boundary of the land designated. It lay east of Annsville Creek, taking the land east and south of where Peekskill is located. April, 1643, the Dutch paid for their land in goods as follows: 8 guns, 9 blankets, 5 coats, 14 fathoms of daffel cloth, 14 kettles, 40 fathoms of black cloth, 40 fathoms of white wampum cloth, 2 anchors of rum, 5 half vats of strong beer, 6 earthen jugs, 12 shirts, 50 pounds of powder, 30 bars of lead, 18 hatchets, 18 hoes, 14 knives, 1 small coat, 6 fathoms of strong water cloth, 6 pairs of stockings and 6 tobacco boxes. For the above the Indians sold them seven thousand two hundred acres of land, and on this land the Dutch lived in peace and harmony with the Indians.

Richard Abrahamson afterwards took the name of "van Lent," and became the principal owner of this vast tract of land—eighteen hundred acres. The family became numerous in this vicinity, and from here they went out and settled throughout the country and even into Canada and Nova Scotia. The Lents at this period were in the midst of the red men of the forest, and wars were waged on all sides by the Indians, the French and afterwards with Great Britain. It is very evident that they lived friendly with their surrounding natives, as no records are found that any trouble ever arose between them.

In after years the title of this land was made good to the settlement by the government of England, giving a charter grant and patent which was called Ryck's Patent, (Richard Patent in Dutch), so called after Richard Abrahamson, the principal patentee, who later assumed the English name of "Lent." Substantially the tract passed to Hercules Lent, Richard's son, about 1730. Three hundred acres of this land fronting on the inner and upper part of Peekskill Bay, was deeded to Jacobus De Kay, April 25th, for the value of 400 guilders, which ultimately became the property of John Kronkhyte, the ancestor of the Cronkhites. Ryck's Patent remained a separate political division for representation in the Assembly until divided into township by the New York State Act of 1788.

After many years there came a time for a division of this land, and Hercules Lent (110) purchased eighteen hundred acres of this land, paying £150 ($750), on which this branch of the Lent family have lived from the first settlement down to the present time, dividing and dividing until there is left but sixteen acres occupied by Harlan Luther Lent, a great-great-grandchild. This property has never been out of the ownership of the family.

1. RYCK (RICHARD) ABRAHAMSON VAN LENT, born in New Amsterdam (New York City) in 1637, and was christened in the old Dutch Church in the Fort, now the Battery, was the eldest son of Abram Rycken, and adopted the name of "van Lent." He married (Tryntje) Catrina, daughter of Harck Syboutsen. They became the early members of the old Dutch Church (Sleepy Hollow) at Tarrytown, N. Y. Children:

10. Elizabeth, born 1672, m. Thomas Heyert (Hyatt).
11. Abraham, born March 10, 1674. Died February 5, 1746.
12. Ryck, born 1678. Died ———
13. Harck (Hercules), born 1681. Died in 1766.
14. Margaret, born about 1683, m. Thomas Bensen.
15. Katherine, born about 1685, m. Joseph Jones.

Ryck (Richard) van Lent, with his two brothers, Jacob and Hendrick, settled in the Manor of Courtlandt, and became sole owners of Ryck's Patent. This

Not of All

Patent passed by purchase to Hercules Van Lent (13), as appears by a certain release, the first bearing date April 20, 1715: "Whereas, Jacob Abramsen, of ye Upper Yonkers, one of the original patentees, for the consideration of £150, confirms Hercules van Lent, yeomanry, in all his right, title and interest in ye patent, called 'Ryck Abramsen's Patent.'" He was an Elder in the Dutch (Sleepy Hollow) Church, at Tarrytown, N. Y., and was very much respected.

Ryck's (Richard) Patent covered a large portion of the northern half of the Town of Cortlandt, between Verplanck's Point and Peekskill Creek, purchased by Richard Abrahamson, Jacob Abrahamson, Teunis De Kay, Sybout Harche, Jacob Harche and Samuel De Kay, of New York, from the *Sachoes Indians, through Lieutenant-Governor Thomas Dongan, in the reign of King James II, in 1684.

The Indian "village" of this tribe was located at the southernmost part of the present site of the beautiful city of Peekskill, Westchester County, N. Y., and commonly known as "Lent's Flats." The Chief of this tribe in the year 1682, was "Sirham." Southwest of this at Verplanck's Point, were the Meahagh Indians, and still further south bordering on the Croton River, were the Kitchiwangs, and it is said that they were all great hunters and fishermen. North of this was the sub-tribe, from which this land-grant of 1,800 acres is a portion of the 7,200 acres purchased from these Indians in 1641.

A private road passing through this property from the old Post Road on the south, running in a northeasterly direction at a point that is now Washington Street, was the scene of several incidents in connection with the Revolutionary * Sachus, Sachoes and Sackonck, are given as names of Peekskill (correctly Peake-skil), and Magregaries as the name of the stream, though it actually belongs to a stream south of Peekskill, as per map of 1776. Sachus and Sachoes are equivalent, and are of record as the name of a resident sachem, meaning "black kettle" from Suckeu "black" and hoos, "kettle." Magrigaries is an orthography of Macgreory's, from Hugh Macgregory or MacGregorie, the holder of patented lands subsequently included in Van Courtlandt's Manor. The Indian name of the stream is noted in deed of 1695, "called by the Indians Paquintuk, and by the Christians Jan Peake's Creek." Paquintuk is an equivalent of Pokqueentuk, and described "a broad, open place in a tidal river or estuary." Presumably Peekskill Bay. Sackonck is not the same as Sachoes, or Sachus. The first word is from the same root Suckeu, "black," but the second, Onck, stands for "land or place"—Suck'iaug, Suckiauke, Suck'onck. The clan or Indian family in occupation here were known as the "Kitchawongs," a name written in several orthographies, which was given them from the name of Croton River, at some point east of the Hudson. It describes "strong or rapid water," and is usually met in application to streams which rise in the highlands and flow down rapidly descending slopes. The final "s" in the name is an European plural and does not belong to the original. Its general meaning is "people" or "tribe."—E. M. RUTTENBER.

War. This road was a short cut toward Yorktown, and was used by the British frequently. It is said that on one occasion the "Red Coats" were in hot pursuit of the Continental soldiers, and the Americans thinking that they would be captured, turned in this road and with their wagons drawn by oxen, drove into a pond of water at the west called "Lents' Pond," and threw their baggage, trunks, &c., into this pond.

On another occasion the British were after the Americans up this road, and when at the top of the hill going toward the woods, and about where the present Washington Street crosses, the "Red Coats" were at their heels, and one of the "Johnnies" on his horse, struck at one of the American soldiers with his sword, just glanced his head and cut off one of the buttons from his coat, but thinking that the Americans were in large numbers a short distance in the woods, retreated. Many other incidents are told by the older Lents who have passed on the "other side," to whom the author used to listen with deep interest, and they were delighted in relating them. This road passed through a portion of the property of Louis Lent and Hercules Lent, brothers, in 1856. At present there is very little of it observable—all closed up. Harlan Luther Lent, son of Hercules Lent, occupies a small portion of the original Patent, and has an outlet on Washington Street.

The Lent Family

The Lents were very numerous in the Continental Army. They voluntarily took up arms and fought bravely to free themselves from the yoke of thralldom to Great Britain. Sir Henry Clinton said that he could neither "buy nor conquer these Dutchmen." This is true, as the proof has been evident in all the generations past. They are and always have been a very devout, conscientious, loyal Christian class of people—they love the Word of God—it was their daily meat.

11. ABRAHAM VAN LENT, born March 10, 1674, was the eldest son of Ryck (1) Abrahamson van Lent and his wife Catrina. He was a Deacon in the Dutch Church (Sleepy Hollow), at Tarrytown, N. Y., and retired August 28, 1724. He married Anna Catherine, daughter of Adolph Meyer, from Ulfen in Westholia, in 1698, (born, 1677), who settled in Harlem. She died July 21, 1762. Children :

16. Ryck, born in 1699. Died in 1732.
17. Jacob, born in 1701. Died ——

21. Catrina, born in 1710, married Elbert Herring, January 1, 1729.
22. Jacobus, born July 3, 1714. Died December 13, 1779.

26. Ann, born in 1724, m. twice—1st, Maratie Ryder ; 2d, John Brinckerhoff for his 2d wife.

After living a number of years in Westchester County, Mr. van Lent returned to Newtown, Long Island, in 1729, and took possession of a farm left him by his Uncle Jacobus Krankheyt, being at that time and forming the estate of Isaac Rapalye, deceased. Mr. van Lent was a leading member of the Dutch Church, and was on the building committee to build the church, on the 29th day of December, 1731. They had subscribed £275.12s. for that purpose. The church was finished in 1735. He also inherited from his father the following by will :

"WHEREAS, I am entitled to a certain island in the Sound, called 'Judich's Island,' and a piece of land opposite on Nassaw Island, which is wrongfully detained from me. I leave it to my eldest son Abraham Lent."

Mr. van Lent died February 5, 1746, and his widow, July 21, 1762, in her 86th year.

16. RYCK (RICHARD) LENT, born in 1699, and died in 1732, intestate. Letters of administration granted to his wife, Cornelia, April 18, 1732.

He resided at Eastchester, Westchester County, N. Y., was the son of Abraham and Anna Catherine van Lent. He married Cornelia, daughter of Johanna Waldron, of Haarlem, Holland, (born 1696), at the Dutch Church, in New York City, December 6, 1722. Children :

- 30. Margaret, born in 1729, married Theodore Snedeker.

27. ABRAHAM LENT, born in 1723, was the son of Ryck and Cornelia van Lent. He married Anntje, daughter of Abraham Brinckerhoff, November 22, 1754. She was born 1715, and was baptised at Jamaica, N. Y., July 17, 1721. (In R. D. Ch. R., p. 198), Died March 20, 1792. Children :

- 31. Abraham, Jr., born December 31, 1755. Died August 20, 1828.
- 32. Cornelia, born September 28, 1761, m. Isaac Lent, of Tuckahoe, Westchester County, N. Y.

He was made a Captain of the Dutchess Co. Militia, 2d Regt., Col. Abraham Brinckerhoff. Afterwards made a Col. of an Orange Co. Regt., and letters in 1776, between the Provincial Congress and himself, are printed in the New York Archives of the Revolution. He resigned from his regiment as Colonel, March 26, 1776, and the regiments, which had been commanded by Colonels Hawkes Hays and Abraham Lent, were consolidated May 28, 1778. The following are extracts :

“The first to respond to a call for volunteers to guard the river front was Colonel Abraham Lent, son of Ryck Lent (16). James W. Lent, son of John and Ann Lent (28), was First Lieutenant of the First Company, March 12, 1776.

“At a meeting of the freeholders and inhabitants of Orangetown and Province of New York, on Monday, the 4th day of July, 1774, at the house of Mr. Yoast Mabie, in said town, there were seven resolutions adopted. The third resolution was in regard to the acts of Parliament imposing duties upon this country, and the act for shutting up the Port of Boston, without declaring our abhorrence of measures so unconstitutional and fraught with destruction.

“By the 7th resolution Colonel Abraham Lent was made Chairman of a committee of five for Orangetown, to correspond with the City of New York, and to conclude and agree upon such measures as they should judge necessary in order to obtain a repeal of said acts.

“Abraham Lent was made Colonel December 22, 1775, of the First Regiment of Militia of Fort of Orangetown and Precinct of Orange, in Orange County, by the Provincial Congress for the Colony of New York.

“In Congress, 15 Ho. P. M., May 30, 1775, pursuant to adjournment, by resolution * * * ‘that the Militia of New York be armed and trained and in constant readiness to act at a moment’s warning.’ The order specified that Colonel Lent be one of the committee ‘to report an arrangement of troops to be embodied for the defense of this Colony, and to report such rules and regulations as would be proper to be established by this Congress, for the government of said troops.’

“Die Lunæ, 4 Ho. P. M., March 18, 1776, a letter from Abraham Lent, Esquire, Colonel of the Orangetown Regiment, bearing date the 17th inst., was read and filed. He thereby states that he received the resolution and order of the Provincial Congress of the 13th inst., for sending a number of men from his regiment to New York. He thereby proposes to send a Captain and set of officers for a Minute Company, and requests an explanation of the order, which he appears to have misunderstood.

“A draft of an answer to Col. Lent was read and approved of and is in these words: ‘Sir—We received yours of yesterday and have only to observe, that only a lieutenant’s party was to be taken from your Regiment, and as for your Minute Men, we would remind you, that there can be no such thing, unless a company is regularly formed. Therefore, advise you to send down with all convenient speed the thirty-five men wrote for with a First Lieutenant and Ensign with non-commissioned officers in the same proportion. We are, &c.,

Clinton, September 21, 1780, vice Abraham van Wyck, declined, Second Regiment, Rombout Precinct, He was appointed Brigade Major to Gen. Swartwout, by Gov. Gilbert Livingston, August, 1786. The following is copy of papers in handwriting of Abraham Lent (31):

"August 1, 1776, I listed as a private soldier (but did duty as clerk) in Col. Jacobus Swarthout's Regiment in Gen. Geo. Clinton's Brigade for 5 months' service under command of Stephen Duryea, Capt.

"We marched from Fishkill, Dutchess County, and now State of New York, to Kingsbridge, and there was stationed until the retreat of our army from Long Island, then ordered to White Plains and was at the battle that was fought there by Gen. McDugal. After the British left there, we were ordered to Peekskill, and from thence to Fort Constitution, and remained there until my term was out, which was the last day of December, 1776. Then returned home.

"Jan., 1777, received an appointment as Ensign in the standing army under Thos. Lee, Capt., John Larnce, Lieut., and was in the expedition of Gen. Heath to Fort Independence, near Kingsbridge, which appointment I resigned in March following (1777) and accepted appointment of First Lieutenant under Hendrick Wycliff, Capt.

"Jacobus Skutt, 2d Lieut. in a detachment to consist of 200 men, commanded by Morice Place, Major, to guard the forts in the Highlands, viz : Fort Montgomery and Fort Constitution, which service commenced the first day of April, 1777, and ended the last of July, being four months, and being dismissed, returned home the 1st of August.

"Some time after Gen. Gates came on to go and take the command of the Northern Army, Col. Hughes made application to Col. Derict Brinckerhoff for a guard to go with him to Albany, and there being eight of us who had no command at that time, I, among the rest, volunteered and went with him to Albany, and after our return home the British came up the North River and Capt. Dorland and myself joined a detachment of Col. Derict Brinckerhoff's Regiment of Militia, commanded by Major Swarthout and marched to Peekskill to join Gen. Putnam, to prevent the enemy from landing on this side of the river. But when Fort Montgomery was taken the whole of his regiment turned out and we remained with them in service until the enemy left the river and returned to New York, which was some time in November. In 1778, when the fort was building at West Point, I went as a First Lieutenant with the militia to assist in building it, and continued there six weeks by relieving other officers of same grade.

414. FOSTER LENT, born in the Town of Cortlandt, Westchester County, N. Y., October 24, 1816, in the farm house on the Daniel Carpenter farm, situated on the Old Post Road, and known as the "Abraham Hilliker Farm," at Buchanan, N. Y. He was the son of Daniel (365) and Catherine (Brown) Lent. Mr. Lent comes from a long-lived and patriotic lineage. His father was a Captain of the United States Army of the war of 1812, and his grand-father, Hendrick Lent, was a brave soldier of the Revolution. He had little chance for education. He had to work from his youth, as most boys did in those early days. After living for several years in the house where he was born, his parents removed up the road, opposite the Alexander Muirhead house, now owned by Mr. Amos O. Lent. In the Winter of 1826, when but ten years of age, he removed with his parents to Orange, N. J. There were no railroads in those days, and they crossed the river in a sleigh, on the ice and thence across Rockland County to their new home. About fifteen years of his life were spent in New Jersey. While there he did odd chores, worked on a brickyard and wheeled bricks and finally learned the trade of house-carpenter and builder, which he has always followed, either alone or in partnership. In 1841 he removed to Peekskill, N. Y., and with his wife and two unmarried daughters, Susan M. and Mary Louise, re-

THE HUDSON RIVER.

426. BY E. A. LENT.

IT is a charming valley where
 The lordly Hudson flows ;
 Green, terraced hills are set about ;
 The cool wind comes and goes ;
 The meadows spread their emerald slopes
 Down to the river's edge,
 And, in between, the rocks jut out
 In many a seamy ledge.

And, here and there, adown the hills,
 A rippling streamlet sings
 A song that has no need of words
 To tell of pleasant things ;
 Of grottoes in the far, dim woods ;
 Of pools, moss-rimmed and deep,
 From whose embrace the little rills
 In daring venture creep.

It floweth deep and strong and wide—
 This river of romance,
 Along whose banks, on moonlit nights,
 The Highland fairies dance ;
 And if the watcher will but look
 The glass of fancy through,
 He'll see a phantom Indian skim
 The waves with birch canoe.

The traffic of a world goes up
 And down the river's breast,
 And either bank upbears a track
 That binds the East and West ;
 Lighthouses guard the rocky points ;
 The Beacon towers high,
 To mark the place where watch-fires burned
 To warn when foes were nigh.

The houses in that vicinity at that period were very few and scattering. His farm house was located on the highway, on the south side, just at the break of the hill. The Revolutionary soldiers in passing through here, took many advantages and committed their dastardly looting, and on three different occasions destroyed his personal property, which the following, in his own handwriting, will show. It is presumed all this took place while he was in the field shouldering his musket to help free the country, as he is recorded as having enlisted in the War of the Revolution, in the Line :

working on the farm. He was always a healthy man, possessed of a vigorous constitution, of good, steady and industrious habits, never knew the taste of tobacco; kind and congenial and very much respected. In politics he was a Democrat of the Jacksonian school, and rarely ever missed an election, or "town meeting," as he called it. He was consulted often for advice and counsel in reference to agricultural pursuits and farming generally. He was taken with the "grip" about a year prior to his death, from the effects of which he never fully recovered. On Monday, July 27, 1891, he took to his bed with nervous prostration, from which he never rallied, and died on the morning of Wednesday, August 5, 1891, in the house that he had built, situated on the old "post road," at the continuation of South Street, south of the village of Peekskill, in the neighborhood where he was born, eighty years before, where he was living a retired life. The funeral services were held at the First Methodist Episcopal Church, Peekskill, N. Y., of which he had been a consistent member. Revs. W. L. Pattison and T. S. Lent, officiated. The remains were interred in the Van Cortlandtville Cemetery.

“Secondly—I will to my son Abraham, the north part of my now dwelling farm, adjoining to the Post Road, and thence running south on the said Post Road, to a chestnut stump near the forty-seven mile stone; then running about an east southeast course, until it comes to the brook; then turning a northerly course as said brook runs to the land now in possession of Elias Clapp, and then turning a westerly course by the land of the said Clapp, to the Post Road aforesaid, with all the improvements thereon.

“I give to my son John, the south part of my now dwelling, beginning at the chestnut stump aforesaid, and running an east southeasterly course, by the land of said Abraham, until it comes to the brook aforesaid; then turning a southerly course as said brook runs to the land of Hercules Lent; then turning a westerly course, by the land of Hercules Lent, to the Post Road aforesaid, and then running a northerly course, as said road runs to the place of beginning.

“I likewise will and order that the above said property of said Abraham I will to him, his heirs and assigns forever, and that part of said property that I will to my said son John I will to him and his heirs, and the said heirs and their assigns forever, and to my son Abraham my dock, including therewith one hundred feet on the water-front and two hundred feet back.

The above historic St. Peter's Episcopal Parish Church, looking from the south, was erected A. D. 1766, and dedicated August 9, 1767, by the Rev. John Ogilvie, D. D. Is located on a summit of a high knoll, on the east side of the highway, 2½ miles north of Peekskill, known as Van Corlandville. Is surrounded by the old burying grounds, where lie the ashes of thousands of the earthly family of God's people, including hundreds of the Lent family, there to await the resurrection morn. The building has not been used for many years. Long may it stand.

homestead on Bowery Bay. The quaint dwelling was among the first erected, with uncouth illustrations of Scripture in Holland tiles. "To this day," says Mr. Lente, "I feel the cultural effects of that Bay, with its ever changing moods and manners, like a living, sparkling thing. But oh, the searching climate of Winter and Spring, it went to the marrow of my bones, and is there yet." His house was headquarters for ministers, and the numerous "agents" then in vogue. Among the ministers were Rev. Dr. John Scudder, a stalwart man every way, and ancestor of all the Missionary Scudders. His two sons, Joseph and Samuel, were Mr. Lente's classmates in the Seminary.

Not having strength enough for farm work, Mr. Lente began a course of study with Rev. G. J. Garretson, pastor of Reformed Church, of Newtown, L. I., prepared for college at Erasmus Hall, Flatbush, L. I., and entered Sophomore Class of Rutgers' College, September, 1839. After graduation in 1842, without special honors, but with, perhaps, the average standing of the Class, instead of entering on a seminary course with most of the class—among whom were two of the four Talmage brothers—selected teaching, and opened a Classical School in the Village of Newtown, and afterward was assistant to Rev. R. D. Van Kleeck, at Erasmus Hall, Flatbush, Long Island. He entered the Seminary at New Brunswick, N. J., in the Fall of 1847; graduated in 1850; ordained by North Classis of Long Island in Fall of same year, and accepted invitation of Reformed Church, of Coxsackie Landing, N. Y., to supply their pulpit for four months following January 1, in absence of the pastor, Rev. S. M. Woodbridge, for health in Florida.

December, 1851, he was pastor of Reformed Church, at Napanoch, N. Y. Health failing, he retired in the Fall of 1854. After a year's rest he took the pastorate of Collegiate Church of Rosendale and Bloomingdale, Ulster County, N. Y. After passing through a long siege of illness, both to himself and child, Edward Prime, which told on his nervous system, he resigned and was declared "Emeritus" by Classis. In the Spring of 1864 he removed with his family to the quiet village of Washingtonville, Orange County, N. Y. Here he supplied churches as offered him at different times, Blooming Grove and Bethlehem and others as desired. Here he resides with his son, and has resumed his old manner of life.

DUTCH CHURCH, MONTROSE, N. Y.

The old Dutch Church on opposite page, obtained its charter from the Synod of New York. The first meeting-house was built on Montross' Point, on the King's highway, between Verplanck's Point and Crugers. The Church owned a large parsonage there and erected a building for worship. People began to settle on the "post road," a short distance to the east, and it was thought best to change the location of their meeting-house, and the church voted to buy land and erect a new and larger building, which they did, locating it where it now stands, on an elevation of about 25 feet above the road-bed, on the west side of the "post road," a short distance from the Montrose depot of the New York Central and Hudson River Railroad. To the south on the same grounds adjoining the church, (Cedar Hill Cemetery) stretches the greenness of God's acre, where the founders of this church are gathered to their last long repose. Here lie their ashes. Most if not all of their descendants are dead or have removed to distant points. The people still worship in this old church regularly. The first entry made on the records of the church was June 3, 1729, Abraham Lent as Deacon. The following lines of the poet are appropriate:

"I've worshipped there for many a year— Although at last my steps were slow, The old church where we praised the Lord From whom all blessin's flow! I jest can't help the heartbeat—the mist that's roun' my eyes— For there I read my title clear to mansions in the skies: An' there, in years that had their tears, I found salvation free— And know that sweet, amazin' grace that saved a wretch like me. I knowed the "amen corner"—I knowed the "anxious seat"—	An' when the organ shook the walls, or died in music sweet, Like a little child a-dreamin', I closed my old eyes there, An' my soul went up to heaven on the wings of love an' prayer. There was sweetest consolation in the holy, heavenly calm That led us into Gilead, where we found the healin' balm. 'Twas there we glimpsed the beauty of a better, brighter sky, That bent o'er Canaan's happy land, where our possessions lie."

His company missing him, heard that he had gone over to the British across the river, but was back again on this side of the river and was at his home. They went there and found him in. * From the Spring of 1782, to August, 1783, troops were encamped upon "Fishkill Plain," near the village of that name. The most convenient landing place on the east bank of the Hudson was upon a long, low point of land, formed to the north of the mouth of Fishkill Creek, known as "Presquile," and here, according to the tradition of the locality, under two large oak trees, George Washington always mounted and dismounted his horse as he started to and returned from the camp. One of these trees was blown to the ground on the 10th of August, 1881; the other one still stands. The story of Washington's connection with these two oaks seems to be abundantly substantiated. The Commander-in-Chief was often accompanied on these excursions from his headquarters at Newburgh to the Camp at Fishkill, by his Adjutant-General, William Denning, whose son, also William Denning, at that time fourteen years of age, was sometimes allowed to join the party. The incident of the period made impressions upon the boy, not easily effaced; and many years later, in 1822, after a life of travel and adventure, he returned to the Hudson and purchased from a member of the Verplanck family the point of land and the old oaks, still associated in his mind with the Commander-in-Chief of the American army, and the first President of the United States. The daughter of William Denning (2d) still lives, and until 1890 inhabited the old mansion built on "Presquile" in 1813. To her we are indebted for these facts, and her life and that of her father span the years which separate us from the days of Washington and the Colonial army.

The following lines are dedicated to Stephen Lent's memory, by a lady in California :

LIKE the sound in the forest when a mighty oak fell,
Echoed over the land his funeral knell ;
And the fond, clinging ivy that leaned on his side,
Fell in grief to the earth when her loved husband died.

It was borne on the breeze from his Californian hearth,
Back to Orange County, the place of his birth ;
And the friends of his childhood were shrouded
in gloom,
When they learned their old playmate was laid in the tomb.

No armies he led through fields of red gore :
Peace and love to mankind was the armor he wore.

And the stand he bore from his earliest youth,
Was love for his country, temperance and truth.

How oft has his bounty the widow's heart blessed ;
While he fed from his larder the orphan oppressed,
And their blessings to-day, like a crown of bright gold,
Encircle his temples now rigid and cold.

No more to his bosom his fond wife he will press,
Or in the loved circle his children caress ;
For he heard a sweet voice—"I've a message for thee ;
Leave thy widow and fatherless children to me.

Then follow his footsteps in meekness and truth ;
Give your hearts to his God in the days of your youth ;
Trust in his Redeemer, and lean on his breast, Though care-worn and weary, in Him you'll find rest.

"Trust them to my care, protection and love,
Till I bring them to join you in the regions
above ;

Thy work is well done ; come to thy reward,
And rest in the mansions that I have prepared."

He hath entered the portal—"Death where is thy sting?"—

Of the beautiful city of his Father and King ;
And the bright shining One that Up Calvary was led,
Placed a crown of bright glory on the con-queror's head.

Bereaved friends and Orphans, Oh ! why do you weep ?

Your loved one is not dead—only fallen asleep ;
The grave merely hides him awhile from your eyes ;

When the last trump shall sound, triumphant he'll rise.
